

NEW WORLD DISORDER

060913

Fact: NYC street gangs have been observed to be viciously violent in their wars against each other – up to a point. They will moderate their violence if they see that they are making such a ruckus that the Police will crack down on all of them and take their Game away.

Conclusion: Any Game will be moderated/suspended by the Players themselves, if they see their activities threatening the Game itself. It takes the presence of a larger antagonistic force that potentially threatens their Game, to make the Players of the sub-Game tread lightly.

Theory: There are longtime behind-the-scenes world rulers – Traditional Leaders. They consist of different groups/families geographically determined. They are in competition with each other for world domination. They are playing a Game using the Common Man as their pawns.

Hypothesis: If their activities could be brought to light, then the larger antagonistic force would turn on them and shut/slow them down. The larger antagonistic force in this case is the Common Man.

Strategy: Educate the Common Man to the fact that he has more in common with his “traditional enemy/s” than he has in common with his Traditional Leaders. And in a similar way, his Traditional Leaders have more in common with other Traditional Leaders, including the Traditional Leaders of his “traditional enemy/s,” than they have with the Common Man.

Outcome: The Traditional Leaders will run for cover, and a period of tranquility is possible for the Common Man.
