

Parasites I Have Known

24 Sept 12

The most successful Parasite is one that can keep its Host as healthy as possible for as long as possible without the Host being able to throw off the Parasite, and preferably without even knowing it is there.

The New World Order crowd are definitely Parasites on the Body Politic of the world. Their association with the broader population began, as I have pointed out, as an equal exchange: They provided Protection for the People, and the People gave them Obedience and Tribute. Since this relationship between the broad public and a few Protectors began in Paleolithic times, folks just accept the status quo, without inspection. "It's always been this way!" But as there are no true Enemies left out there worth their salt, our Protectors should be out of a job. But over time they have established a network with other Protectors – crisscross directorates across supposed Enemy lines – whose evolved purpose is to keep their jobs by keeping the ignorant masses worried about the next attack upon them. They regularly create straw men to knock down, proving just how necessary their Protection is. They will do whatever is necessary to keep Obedience and Tribute flowing their way.

For the last half century the Western World spent trillions of dollars for Protection from the possibility of an attack from the USSR. The USSR served as the world's Boogeyman for decades until it could no longer afford to project a threatening shell – at which point it collapsed. Without the threat from the USSR, there was a quick scramble to find a suitable Enemy to keep Western populations in fear. Now we have vaguely defined Terrorists under every bed, who must be rooted out – every bedroom of the People the potential scene of a thorough search by black-hooded Homeland Police.

In the US, it is a sick joke to watch Homeland Security tighten the noose around the necks of Joe Sixpack and Holly Hobby, while the border with Mexico is left wide open. Of course as the US economy tanks, there are more illegals leaving through that porous line in the sand than ever before. If there were Terrorists who had crawled out of their caves in the Middle East and wanted to attack the US, and if they could afford a ticket to Mexico, they wouldn't have much trouble getting into the country.

Another embarrassment for the Elite looking for a plausible Enemy, was Saddam Hussein. Admittedly he was a bad guy, but a trillion dollars paid to defense contractors, and ten years of war devastating Iraq – just to kill one bad guy? No matter all the lies and brouhaha leading up to the US savage attack on a crippled nation – if indeed it was just one guy they were after – do you really think fattening up the Military-Industrial Complex to the tune of one trillion dollars was necessary? The fact is – the bad guys are becoming easier and easier to spot. And as in the case of Bad Guy Saddam, it is usually just one guy or just a few who have grabbed control of some benighted People. If you have murder on your mind, you don't have to smash the whole country – you just knock off that one guy, or at most another 50 around him who are loyal to him and his cause – not one million innocent civilians.

Imagine pre-WW I, or for that matter pre-WW II. What if the broad base of the Peoples of the nations involved had had the means to spot, and get rid of the few war mongers among them – those who were about to unleash the devastation of those conflicts? Do you think that they would have chosen war? I don't. I think the average guy or gal would have had enough sense to know that they were being manipulated by just a very few Predators looking for the next easy score. Talk about the fox guarding the hen house! I can't think of a better analogy – except in today's ever-shrinking world, it is a cabal of parasitic foxes guarding a bunch of separate hen houses. Those same foxes make sure that all their propaganda machinery keeps each group of hens very nervous about their peacefully clucking neighbors.

If there were recourse to a higher Justice, the Elite Criminals pulling the strings of their Governments around the world, could be brought up on RICO charges. It would be fairly easy to prove that since the time of Kings and Queens, the Elite have banded together in a conspiracy to make the Social Contract a necessary burden upon the trusting Peoples of their kingdoms. And there is too much evidence to ignore, that the same Elite who continually send us off to war, were the financial and technological supporters of such luminaries as Lenin, Stalin, and Adolph Hitler. Communism itself is suspect as a workable system without the continual secret support of the wealth siphoned off free men by their corrupt Governments.

I want to make an analogy at this point to my encounter with a parasitic tree. It had grown up next to, leaned on, then almost completely enveloped another – a fruit tree. The parasitic tree had grown at about a 30° angle to the fruit tree. Over the years it had pushed up parallel to the trunk of the fruit tree, all the while sending out vine-like tendrils which girded the trunk of its Host and actually sunk into the tissue of the other's bark until it appeared that its interlacing tendrils were a carpet over the bark of the other – reaching up about four feet.

To rescue the fruit tree, I first cut the Parasite's trunk close to the ground, then I tore its matted carpet of tendrils off the trunk of the other. To remove it, I had to tie off the parasite mat at its connection to its trunk, and with the rope attached to my car, yank it away from its host. The portion of the uncovered trunk looked leprous – the bark of the fruit tree was pitted, scabrous, and raw.

I thought my work was done, and that the Parasite – now severed from its base in the earth, and pulled off its support on the trunk of the other – would wither and die. It did not. After a few weeks, the leaves of the Parasite still appeared healthier than the leaves of the tree they covered, and were keeping from the sun. I realized that I would have to climb the tree and branch-by-branch pull the vine-like serpentine Parasite off the other.

It was actually quite amazing. The Parasite had firmly established itself into every section of the branching fabric of the tree. It was really more of a vine than a tree. As I worked my way up the tree, I realized that Parasite's trunk was only its starting point, and that its real sustenance came from the juices of its host, plus the product of its own leaves, which were physically supported by the ailing structure of the other. In places the vines seemed to have welded themselves to their supporting branches, appearing to be of one woody tissue. Another interesting aspect of the Parasite's methodology was in the creation of nodes of support. In the same manner that the initial plant had surrounded the base of the trunk of the other, so the vines 20 or 30 feet up the tree would surround sections of the branches of the other in a firm interlocking grip – and then from that point of strength, send out more tendrils which wound around higher branches, themselves branching off into new directions, forming new nodes, etc.

Now the most evil (if a plant can be evil) consequence of the years of intertwined association of the host with its vigorous guest, was that in places, the fruit tree started to take on the appearance of the Parasite. Its leaves and branches high up were difficult for me to distinguish from the marauder I was hunting. And there were odd cancerous appearing growths – where health was completely absent – strange nodules from which malformed leaves sprung. It was as if the Parasite were corrupting its Host and changing it into its own image.

I am happy to report that the fruit tree is recuperating, and a year after the surgery, it is for the first time bearing healthy new fruit. I am sure it would have succumbed to the Parasite, if I had not freed it.

Back to our discussion of the Protection Racket being perpetrated upon the People of Earth...

The man on the street, along with other men and women on all the streets around the world are the fruit tree: roots, trunk, branches, and leaves. They make up better than 99% of the population. They are busy every day struggling to make ends meet for themselves and their families. They are the ones producing the fruit in our analogy. Left to their own devices they would be the expression of a healthy tree. But there are also a few – maybe less than 1% of our fellow men and women who are absolute Psychopaths. They are the Predators amongst us. They are the Parasites. They are relatively few, but they entwine themselves around sources of Power, and prey upon the weak. They are no strangers to the utilization Force in the form of Lies, Theft, Injury, Slavery, and Murder to get what they want from the rest of us.

And because we have lived since Paleolithic times in a Force-oriented Society – dependent upon Kings and their armies to protect us – those who are predisposed to use Force have prospered. They influence others directly, and indirectly by example. That really nasty 1% can influence maybe as much as another 20% of the rest of the population, leading them to walk the criminal path. Just as dope peddlers in slums with their gold chains, new cars and fancy women, can influence poor youngsters to follow their lead, so do lying, cheating, corrupt Politicians infect the Body Politic. It can appear to others that the way to succeed is to use deceit and Force in their dealings with others. Remembering that it is Criminals and Governments which are the two Groups in Society that regularly depend on Force to get what they want – it should be no surprise that these two Groups work well together. Both of them get what they want at the point of a gun.

It is time for the common men and women of the world to recognize that they are being victimized by a bunch of Criminals running a Protection Racket. It is the Criminal Elite who are the real Enemy! It is they who have siphoned off the wealth of the world, leaving 80% of us wondering how things got to be in such a state. The Common Man and Woman need to discover the reason why – recognize the fact that they are being preyed upon by a cabal of Predator Parasites. Once folks see the few Predators for what they are, it will be fairly easy to search them out and destroy their nodes of Power. Honest hard-working men and women freed from those Parasites, will be able to enjoy the fruits of their labor without paying Tribute to, and obeying the Orders of those few who wish to reduce them to sustainable Slavery.
